A PRISON CELL Suncan Young, Bowery "Tough Boy," Twice Sentenced to Death, Prepared Himself for Practice at the Bar.

SIX YEARS IN THE TOMBS, EXPECTS ACQUITTAL NOW.

Convicted on Story of Confession Now Admitted to Be False, Young Took Advice of Molineux and Studied.

Six years' confinement in the Tombs has changed Duncan Young, now await-Bowery boy into a well-read young man who hopes to be admitted to the bar if the jury which is soon to try him finds him not guilty. Young is called the "counsellor of the Tombs," because many of the prisoners go to him for advice. Some of them follow Young's counsel in the face of entirely opposite instruction from their lawyers.

When Young was first locked in his cell in the Tombs in 1899, charged with having killed a man while attempting to commit burgiary, he was twenty-two was hustled out of town on a morning train and taken to the Nassau County jail in Mincola.

It was feared that if he was kept in the jail here until later in the day an attempt would be made to lynch him. As it was threats were made by some of the first persons to hear of the assauk, and the man was closely guarded until he was out of the reach of the villagers.

When attacked with the hatchet, Dr. Keyser turned quickly and hurled a heavy bottle of pills at his assailant, but missed him. The negro then hit the doctor several blows on the head with the hatchet and the doctor fell to the floor Leaning over the counter Johnson struck him another blow on the head and then ran toward the rear of the store.

Dr. Keyser with blood pouring from the was twice convicted, but each time escaped from the shadow of the electric chair on technicalities. It was Molineux who first suggested to him that he make some good use of his time while in prison. Young began with Blackstone, and this so interested him that he induced his friends to get him other law books, which he studied very faithfully. One of his relatives, who is a lawyer, mapped out his course of reading for him and occasionally examined him to determine what progress he had made. He now says that the young man is thoroughly fitted to take the examination for admission to the bar. "I am going to take the examination just as soon as I get out of here," said Young in discussing his prospects. "I am sure that my innocence will be established and that there will be nothing in the way of my accomplishing my ambition"
